

STATE ASSEMBLY MUST BRING DOWN EXPENSES

Senator Harry B. Scott Says
That is Main Issue

SOMETHING FOR RELIEF

Subject Should Be Taken Up
Immediately Upon
Convening

(International News Service has asked representative members of the major political parties to express their views on the probable legislative problems to confront Pennsylvania's General Assembly, convening next month. Herewith is the first article, written by a leading Republican who is chairman of the Senate Appropriations Committee. Views of a Democrat will be presented tomorrow by a prominent member of that party. —I. N. S.)

By Harry B. Scott
Senator from Centre and Clearfield Counties
(Written Expressly For I. N. S.)

PHILIPSBURG, Pa., Dec. 16.—(INS)—First and foremost in the list of tasks facing the Pennsylvania General Assembly of 1933, meeting on January 3, will be to bring the expenses of government within the income and while that is being done care should be taken that something be left over for whatever method of relief for the distressed is determined upon.

To my mind this subject should be undertaken as soon as the two houses are organized by studying and coordinating the reports and results of inquiries conducted by the executive and legislative branches of the government the last half year or so.

Of course, we shall have to reduce salaries and other allowances which are out of range and we may have to further curtail certain activities of government.

All this means careful consideration of findings and possibly some fresh investigation into functions and their cost. And in this connection I want to say organized campaigns to stir up sentiment in favor of retention of this or that bureau or department will get nowhere with me.

The Commonwealth is confronted with a serious business situation and it must be treated just that way. There will be no time for hallyhoo in the next session, either for or against reduction in appropriations. The amount we can appropriate must be arrived at with utmost care.

So much for the expenses of State government. I am hopeful something can be accomplished to relieve the burden of local taxation. The woods are full of suggestions and I believe something can be worked out either by changes in form of administrative units or methods cutting down costs. And in doing this we should guard against any further centralization of government. People in local government should be as willing as those in State government to take their share in readjustment.

Unquestionably remedial legislation is required in public service matters. Control of securities, rates and certain expenses must be enlarged. We must overhaul our election laws and work out our highway problems so that maintenance costs will not plague us in the years when we are getting on our feet again.

MELLON TO COME HOME

London, England, Dec. 16.—Ambassador Mellon, who will sail for the United States tomorrow aboard the liner Europa, to spend Christmas at home, may go to Washington for a conference with President Hoover, on war debt situation. This was indicated today by a spokesman in the United States Embassy who declared "naturally, Ambassador Mellon will go to Washington if President Hoover invites him."

HOOVER STUDIES SITUATION

Washington, D. C., Dec. 16.—With the debts default of five nations no longer a matter of theory, but an accomplished fact, President Hoover turned today to what steps, if any, are to be taken by his administration in the ten weeks of life remaining to it.

Several courses are open to him. He can:

1. Lay the situation before Congress in a special message and ask authority to create a commission to deal further with the debtors.
2. Create such a commission on his own executive responsibility, trusting that its accomplishments, if any, would receive the approval of this or the succeeding Congress.
3. Again invite President-elect Roosevelt to co-operate with him in the formation of a joint program to deal with this situation.
4. Let the situation merely drift and leave the whole tangled situation to be dealt with after March 4th by the new Democratic administration.

KENNER IS HELD

Washington, D. C., Dec. 16.—Martin R. Kenner, 25, of Allentown, who flourished a pistol towards members of the House of Representatives Tuesday when he demanded "twenty minutes to make a speech" was held for Grand Jury action today. His bond was placed at $2500 by Frederick K. Abbott.

FRANCE WOULD RETALIATE

Paris, Dec. 16.—Any attempt by the United States at reprisals on France for her war debt default will be met by sharp retaliation with the American residents of this country the chief target. George Rousseau, prominent radical socialist deputy, told International Service today. "The Deputies' warning was voiced when news reached the Chamber of Deputies that United States Senator Kenneth McKellar, of Tennessee, had introduced a bill proposing a levy of a $5,000 passport visa fee to nations in default, with the object of cutting off France's American tourist trade.

"I never heard of such stupidity," Rousseau declared, "but if this bill passes, I am prepared to present a bill in the French Chambers to tax all Americans now living in France $1,000 for their identity cards."

House Girds Itself For Another Dry Battle

By William S. Neal
(I. N. S. Staff Correspondent)

WASHINGTON, Dec. 16.—(INS)—The House girded itself for another battle over Prohibition today, with Democratic leaders planning to bring the new 3.2 per cent beer bill up for passage next Tuesday.

Democratic leaders, who inaugurated the beer bill drive as a platform pledge and to obtain revenue, were confident that the bill will pass by a fair margin.

A new fight for a separate bill legalizing light wines was under way by the "wine bloc" today, with the Ways and Means Committee pledged to consider the question of reporting a wine measure. Wine backers predicted approval.

The two to one vote in the ways and means committee for the beer measure was accepted by House wets—and some dries—as an indication of sufficient strength to insure passage of the bill.

The dries, nevertheless, were prepared to fight the beer proposal to the limit. They recalled that Democratic leaders also predicted passage of the Garner repeal resolution, but it failed by six votes.

Many amendments will be proposed to the beer measure, with the result that it may be materially changed on the floor.

Efforts will be made to reduce the alcoholic content to 2.75 per cent, raise the tax from $5 to $7.50 a barrel, restrict sale to bottles and outlaw the saloon.

GIFTS THIS YEAR ARE MUCH LOWER IN PRICE

Even Though Funds Are Scarce, Presents Can Be
As Nice As Ever

MORE FOR THE MONEY

By Gift Seeker
EVEN though money be scarce for some this year, gifts just as nice as ever may be procured by such, because of the fact prices are lower than at any Christmas season in years. Regardless of what class the merchandise is catalogued under, the reduction in price is just as marked in one as in another.

There is one gift that was recalled to my mind today as I passed along Wood street, which an entire household might enjoy. That is a photograph of yourself taken at Nichols Studio. And the beauty of this suggestion is that one purchase will answer any number of gift problems. Have your photograph taken today and order six or a dozen. The cabinets are attractive or if you wish to keep the price lower order the photoettes now featured at Nichols. If you do not wish to give a photograph of yourself have that fine snapshot of the children enlarged and framed. It will bring joy untold.

Let's turn our thoughts to the boys and men. At United Cut Rate Store, 125 Mill street, there are to be found attractive gift sets of military brushes, comb and clothes brush. These, in a plain dark wood, are encased in a gray-lined box. Or if you wish a smaller set at this store are to be purchased the military brushes, in various styles. Turban and scarf sets are now quite the "rage." Corns have them at 115 Mill street. And what quality!

MAN KILLED ON DETOUR NEAR TULLYTOWN; WELFARE WORKER INJURED AT NESHAMINY BRIDGE

Asks Sales Tax
A splendid candid camera study of Secretary of the Treasury Ogden L. Mills, made as he presented his report on the proposed beer tax to the members of the House Ways and Means Committee. Mills testified that a beer tax would not yield more than $150,000,000 and urged adoption of a sales tax as a means of balancing the Federal budget.

Russell Basil Paone, 50, Morrisville, Meets Instant Death

STEPPED IN CAR'S PATH

Ran Out of Gas and Stepped From in Back of Truck

A Morrisville man was killed early today on the detour around the Penn Valley bridge and a woman was injured in an accident last evening at the Neshaminy Bridge on the Lincoln Highway.

The dead: Russell Basil Paone, 50, 432 South Pennsylvania avenue, Morrisville.

The injured: Miss Helen Wilson, 52, 521 North 11th street, Philadelphia.

Paone was instantly killed on the detour near Tullytown. Both of his legs were broken, neck broken, several ribs broken, and he suffered a compound fracture of the skull.

The car striking Paone was driven by Russell Potter, Andalusia.

Potter was taken into custody by the Highway Patrol, and the body of Paone was brought to the Harriman Hospital, here. It was viewed by Deputy Coroner W. Furman Young.

According to Bristol police, who took charge of the case until the arrival of the Highway Patrol, Paone and his son-in-law, Michael Denturino, Trenton, N. J., were driving around the detour towards Trenton, at about 12:30 this morning. They ran out of gas and stopped a truck following them, and requested aid. While the men were talking, Paone is said to have stepped from in back of the truck directly into the path of the Potter machine. Potter was accompanied by Mrs. Ethel Taylor, Bristol R. D.

Paone conducted a shoemaking shop in Morrisville, and is survived by his wife and several children.

A seriously injured woman, a wrecked truck bearing the name of a nationally-known meat packer, in which was found three half-barrels of beer, and the disappearance of the driver of the truck confronted highway patrolmen from the South Langhorne barracks last evening when they responded to an accident call at the bridge over Neshaminy Creek on the Lincoln Highway.

TRADE NOTES

Boys and girls galore are coveting the electric mono-train now on display at the show-room of C. W. Winter, Frigidaire dealer, Mill and Wood streets. The manner in which a lucky child may procure such, is to guess the number of beans in the container in the Winter showroom. The winner will be presented with the fine train. Contestants must be boy or girl between four and 12 years. Only one guess is permitted each child, and guesses must be deposited in the contest box at Winter's by December 23rd.

Straus' Cut Rate, the "Store of a Thousand Items," is proving to Bristolians this week that Christmas gifts can be bought in abundance at that establishment and at low prices. Straus' gift suggestion list is proving a boon to many. Items for smokers, candy, and gift sets of toilet articles are selling at prices lower than ever at Straus'.

William Nichols, of Nichols Studio, 112 Wood street, informs that "It is still time for that Christmas portrait. Our prices are below those of the big city studio."

A doll baby, cradle, and doll layette, all assembled in a carrying case with a brass clasp, are offered at Spencer & Sons, Mill and Radcliffe streets. What could bring greater delight to the heart of a little girl than to own one of these layettes? A pillow, woolen blanket, two dresses, night gown, combination and baby cap are included in a bargain price.

UNBALANCED BUDGET

When Congress adjourned last June its members left Washington satisfied that they had balanced the national budget through departmental economies and a number of new tax levies and increases. It is in session again with the job to do all over again.

Public opinion and the welfare of the nation demand that if possible the budget must be balanced by cutting government costs. The taxpayers have turned thumbs down on new taxes or increases in old ones.

Should Congress find additions to the tax burden unavoidable, it undoubtedly will turn to the sales tax to save the day. President Hoover favors it and it has its advocates in both houses of congress.

The billion-dollar revenue act passed last spring was a dismal failure. Although the deficit to date this year is less than that for the corresponding period of the last fiscal year, it is running at the rate of nearly $2,000,000,000 a year without showing any signs of a swing in the opposite direction.

Every source of revenue is less productive this year than last, and last year was far below normal. In some instances less revenue was collected this year under a heavy levy than was collected last year under the lower tax. Nothing will come in from the higher income taxes until next March but the treasury expects this revenue to fall far below its expectations at the time the rates were changed.

Higher taxes must be avoided if possible. Congress should resolve to consider them only as a last resort.

THE DEMAND FOR ECONOMY

Judging from the vast sums Washington is expending on public works and public buildings, America is striving to surpass the grandeur that was Rome's. And the rate the country is rushing down the hill of public extravagance and waste there will shortly be a job for some modern Gibbon to write the Decline and Fall of the American Empire.

Andrew Jackson would never have introduced the spoils system in American politics had he had the vision to foresee the extremes to which it was destined to be carried. For his times he was no mean dispenser of public dollars, but compared with his modern successors he was a piker.

During the Jackson administration the per capita cost of the Federal Government was $2.10. Today it is $38.65. When the country had a population of six millions it cost $12,500,000 to run the national government. Today the population is only 20 times larger while the Federal budget is 400 times greater.

Economists and statisticians have figured it out that at the present rate of increase of public expenditures it will take every cent of national income to run the government in 1957.

Awake to the danger, the American people are demanding a turn-about-face. That was the mandate of the last national election. Congress must turn a deaf ear to the selfish demands of special interests and cup both ears to the cries of the taxpaying multitudes for economy and tax relief.

There will be no decline and fall of the United States because of public extravagance and waste. The saturnalia of spending is over.

Lower Waistline Features Latest Styles

Fashion Solons Decried Change in Existing Silhouette. Simplicity of Line and Importance of Accessories Stressed in Advance Modes.

Declaring that milady has grown weary of the present silhouette with its flat diaphragm, the voices have spoken from the Olympus of fashion and decreed that a change is necessary, for after all, they admit, it is women and not the designers who make the styles. So the coming season is to see many radical changes. One of the most important is the position of the waistline. It is to be lower, and already the new vogue is proving its popularity. Above are two creations by the celebrated Paton of Paris, which give an idea of what the latest styles in evening clothes are like. At left is an evening gown of white imperial satin, girdled with a belt of brilliant red velvet, fastened by a buckle. Note the waistline so much nearer the hips. The frock has a simulated tunic blouse and a diagonal neckline. In center is another gorgeous creation of coral crepe, with an interesting cross-strap decolletage. The low waistline is here obtained by three seamed inserts which finish in the soft bow at the back. At right is a formal gown, worn by Irene Ware, screen actress. The bodice of this creation is form-fitting to below the hips where it joins the skirt, which is cut on bias lines. The top of the bodice is of flesh colored chiffon and has a deep cut neckline.

SYNOPSIS

Dr. John Wolfe, young and capable assistant of the inefficient Dr. Montague Threadgold, is shocked at the pollution he finds everywhere in the little town of Navestock. The young doctor's greatest obstacle in trying to better conditions is the bitter resentment of the people themselves. The affable Threadgold appears more interested in humoring his patients and fattening his purse than he is in curing their ills. He cautions Wolfe against using necessary "expensive" medicines when the "ordinary" preparations will do. Wolfe would be tempted to give up if it were not for lovely, young Jess Mascall, whose sincerity and courageous outlook are an incentive to keep fighting. Filled with curiosity as to how Wolfe spends his time, Mrs. Threadgold searches his room and finds a map he has prepared showing Navestock's polluted areas. She informs her husband of what she calls Wolfe's "gross disloyalty and underhand spying" and suggests that her husband either make him discontinue his researches or discharge him. Wolfe is summoned to a case of sunstroke in the "Pardons" fields, the estate of the wealthy Brandons, where he meets beautiful Mrs. Brandon. Her bored, lifeless attitude puzzles him.

CHAPTER TWENTY

The Rev. Robert Flemming was making an infusion of quassia for the benefit of the green fly on his roses, when Jasper Turrell was shown into the rector's study. Flemming, like many country parsons, was a man with a multitude of hobbies, and a friend might find him at work at his carpenter's bench, ankle-deep in shavings, or forking potatoes in his vegetable garden, or busy making trout flies with his big, but dexterous fingers. His study was a long, low, pleasant room, its big French windows looking like painted panels let into the wall, each with its glimpse of sleek grass, flower borders piled high with colour, grey old walls, and splendid trees. Pleasant disorder prevailed here. Fishing-rods, butterfly-nets, guns, a bow, and walking-sticks were piled in the corners. The book-shelves held not only books, but collectors' boxes, cork spreaders for setting butterflies and moths, fishing-reels, canvas bags, a hunting crop, and gloves. Disorder prevailed also over the rector's desk. Sermons, florists' catalogues, bills, circulars, pamphlets, fly-books, odd knives, and pipes lay as they pleased. The carpet, that had been worn to no colour in particular, had a big hole in the centre of the floor.

It was the room of a man who led a large, pleasant, placid life, a man who read old books, preached his old sermons, and was an expert in the matter of wild life and of flowers. Turrell found him kneeling on the hearth-rug in front of a fire of chips and broken wood, stewing up his infusion of quassia in a big black saucepan. As he knelt, his boots showed two worn places at the heels. He had taken off his coat, and the sleeves of his grey flannel shirt were rolled up to his elbows.

"Good heavens, Flemming, that's a nice game for a day like this! Why don't you let your cook do it?"

"It's not soup."

"That makes it worse. Jove! it's the hottest day this year."

The brewer put his white top-hat on the desk, sat down in an armchair, spread himself, and wiped his forehead. The two patches of colour on his face, shaped like the wings of a butterfly, stood out red and injected. His sandy hair looked clammy, his eyelids pink along their edges.

"What's that stuff, Flemming?"

"Quassia."

"Green fly, eh? I can't get my chaps to syringe properly. When I rate 'em, they always say that the glass and the grass take all their time. I've never yet had a man I could trust."

The rector settled the saucepan on the fire, and got up. He was a very big man, grey-haired, slow, and a little sleepy, his massive, fresh-coloured face healthy as the face of a boy. His blue eyes moved slowly, and dwelt a long time upon any object they happened to notice, like the eyes of a man who had never been hurried. Grave, pleasant tranquillity possessed his face.

Robert Flemming was an aristocrat even in the thick of his hobbies and his old clothes. He had something of the grand manner, a quiet, drowsy graciousness that reflected the calm of a quiet, drowsy life.

"Eighty-three in the shade yesterday."

"It's more today. Nearer ninety, I should imagine."

Jasper Turrell lay back at his ease. For many years he and Robert Flemming had shared in the life of Navestock town. They were fellow-citizens rather than friends, accustomed to meet here, there, and everywhere, to share in the patriarchal government of the place, to administer justice, and to deal with the poor. Robert Flemming was chairman of the Navestock Board of Guardians, and Turrell the people's church-warden at St. Jude's Church.

"I hear there was a case of sunstroke at 'Pardons' last week."

"Yes, the man recovered."

"Threadgold's assistant pulled him through."

Turrell stretched out his legs and stared at the toes of his boots.

"We shall have trouble with that young man, Flemming."

"Oh!"

The rector took his coat from a chair and hunched himself into it, wrinkling up the cloth across his back.

"What makes you think that?"

"Officious young fool."

"I haven't come into touch with him. Besides, he's only an under-strapper."

"Exactly. A question of putting him in his place, or getting Threadgold to shift him, if necessary. We don't want that kind of man in the town, Flemming."

"What annoys you?"

"He's one of those fellows who can't mind their own business, meddle and dictatorial. I'm not a man to be dictated to."

The rector nodded.

"Of course not."

Turrell sat up with a jerk, as though his indignation straightened like a bent spring.

"You know the kind of people we are, Flemming; we like to go our own way, and work in our own way. We are independent, shrewd, strong-willed. We don't like being talked to or interfered with. We manage our own affairs in our own fashion, and I'm not accustomed to being yapped at by a puppy."

Flemming picked up a pipe from his desk, and began to fill it from the tobacco jar on the mantelshelf.

"If a Threadgold's youngster been yapping?"

He broke off with an irritable,

"I don't see —"

"Confound it, Flemming, supposing some youngster came and told you that you ought to alter your sermons, or have your church re-seated?"

Flemming smiled, his healthy face pleasantly amused.

"I don't think that would bother me."

"You are too good-tempered a man. I'm not; if I see a cub I must kick him. Well, let's leave it at that. I dropped in to ask when you want to have your summer school treat. You can have one of my fields."

"Thanks."

"Mrs. Turrell will provide the tea, and all that sort of stuff. We shall be away part of August, and I want you to fix the date."

"Supposing I fix the first Wednesday in August?"

"That will suit us. Do you remember last year? By George, what a day it was! Talk about Providence and the weather!"

Robert Flemming puffed steadily at his pipe. He stared at the hole in the carpet with the far-away look of one who has discovered the skull of some old friend.

"Do you care to come and see my roses?"

Turrell acquiesced.

"I wish you would come up some time and convince my man Walker that he's a fool."

Flemming looked quizzically at the bowl of his pipe.

"One of the most difficult things in the world, sir. If a stranger came into the town and asked for 'Mr. Fool,' we should all of us send him next door."

When the brewer had gone, his white top-hat bobbing above the laurel hedge, where the public path ran between St. Jude's churchyard and the rectory garden, Robert Flemming loitered among his roses, cutting off dead blooms and taking some of the choicest flowers between two fingers in order to scan them with the quiet delight of an expert. But there was not that pleasant abandonment in his mood that characterized his idle moments among his flowers. He would pause and stare at nothing in particular, sometimes rubbing a leaf between finger and thumb, or snipping at the air with his gardening scissors.

It could not be said that Robert Flemming had either love or respect for Jasper Turrell. He was part of Navestock, and as such Flemming had accepted him, and ceased to be piqued by anything the brewer did. People may be classed with poisons, small doses given at frequent intervals producing immunity and no violent reaction. Flemming had come to Navestock as a man of forty. He had lived in the town some twenty years, and had sunk into it like a big and rather indolent man into a comfortable bed. Outside the walls of his garden Flemming was not much of an observer. He had a mind that took things for granted, kindly, patient, not given to asking questions. Evil existed, and he had long ago accepted it as part of the mystical scheme of life. Death, pain, and poverty were stones strung upon the rosary of his religion. They were facts which he had learned to look at through the golden haze of a mellow mysticism.

This Christmas I'd Like an Electric Washer

"I never even thought of home washing before. But I've seen how easy it is to wash in a Maytag. And it seems silly to pay someone else to do such light work."

But don't confuse "buying a washer" with investing in a Maytag. A Maytag washes clothes cleaner... faster... with less work... less wear and tear on clothes... less cost per washing... and keeps on doing that for more years. It represents a permanent investment in household equipment and in actual dollars and cents savings.

Certainly a washer is an appropriate gift—if it's a Maytag. Come in and let us demonstrate and talk terms.

TRICKS of MAGIC EXPLAINED by Will L. Lindhorst

HOW TO INVERT GLASS OF WATER WITHOUT SPILLING IT

Fill a glass with water and place a piece of heavy paper over the top. The suction of the air in the glass will hold the water in and make it possible to invert the glass without spilling the water. This must be done slowly and carefully. Magicians call this a hydraulic glass and use celluloid instead of paper.

Gifts This Year Are Much Lower in Price

One shown in the window of this progressive store has bright colors toned down by the black background. The main shades in this attractive knitted scarf and turban are orange, red and blue. A tassel tops the head-piece, while the scarf is fringed. Then there is another attractive set of a woven material in a plain color. This is in wine-color, and on both the turban and the scarf are two silver buttons. These are not only the latest and reasonable, but neat and dressy.

The growing boy oftimes presents a question mark when it comes to Christmas buying. But at Marty Green's Army and Navy Store there are to be found countless articles for the lad. One in particular nice at this time of the year is a leather jacket, sheep-lined. Mr. Green has a warm one in black leather, with collar of gray fur. The model is a belted-one, and the several pockets which will delight the boy's heart, are roomy. And best of all (so the youngster will agree) are the shiny brass buttons.

YARDLEY BASKETBALL TEAMS GIVE SCHEDULE

YARDLEY, Dec. 16.—Yardley high school basketball teams, under direction of Charles Marks, Carlton R. Leedom, and Miss Anne Wright, have completed the following schedule for the coming season:

December 21, Southampton, boys and girls, home; December 22, Edgewood, boys, away; January 6, 10, 13, open; January 27, Bristol, boys and girls, home (pending); January 31, Deaf School, boys and girls, home; February 3, Southampton, boys and girls, away; February 7, Deaf School, boys and girls, away; February 10, Bensalem, boys and girls, home; February 14, Bristol, boys and girls, away (pending); February 17, Langhorne, boys, home; February 21, open, away; February 24, faculty, boys and girls, home; February 28, Langhorne, boys and girls, away.

Manager of the Yardley high school team is looking for some teams to fill the vacant dates in the schedule, or is willing to receive some bids for open dates on other teams' schedules.

Man Killed Near Tullytown; Welfare Worker Injured

Wilson, 52, a welfare worker, of 521 North 11th Street, Philadelphia, was walking towards Philadelphia on the highway when she was struck and knocked down by a passing truck. The truck then swerved across the road, crashed through the guard rails and was wrecked. While a passing motorist was taking the victim to the Frankford Hospital, the driver of the truck disappeared. Miss Wilson was found to be suffering from a fractured left leg, severe lacerations of the body, and shock.

Patrolmen Berger and Coughlin, who investigated the accident, searched the vicinity for the missing driver in the belief that he was in a dazed condition and had wandered away from the scene. Not finding him, they returned to the truck and discovered three half-barrels of beer in the back of the machine.

Pennsylvania police are searching for the driver and owner of the truck, which is believed to have been disguised for beer running. The machine bore Pennsylvania license plates.

Highway Patrolman Berger stated

he had seen Miss Wilson earlier in the afternoon and that she had told him she was soliciting funds along the highway for the poor relief in Philadelphia and that she intended to walk to Philadelphia.

The accident occurred about 6.30 o'clock.

First Zero Weather In Pittsburgh In Two Years

PITTSBURGH, Dec. 16.—(INS)—Zero weather arrived in Pittsburgh today for the first time in almost two years.

Unofficial mercury readings at the Union Station in the heart of the downtown district at dawn today were zero. Weather Bureau records show that the last zero reading here was January 19, 1950.

Simultaneously, at the City-County Airport, the mercury stood at one below zero and was still dropping.

Panic Reigns As 14 Die in Tokyo Blaze

TOKYO, Dec. 16.—(INS)—Screams of panic-stricken shoppers mingled with the roars and yelps of caged bears and monkeys today as fire gutted the Shirokiya department store, killing 14 persons.

Hundreds were trapped when flames swept through the seven floors of the store, the largest in the Orient. Damage was estimated at about 20,000,000 yen (approximately $4,000,000).

At least 110 persons were seriously injured in the blaze, and authorities said they expected to find the bodies of many more dead when thorough search of the ruins was made.

It was the first fire to occur in a large building in the history of the city. Japanese fire fighters found themselves without proper equipment to cope with it. They had no hook and ladder equipment and insufficient water pressure.

When the fire broke out, the customers and employees rushed for possible means of escape, some flinging themselves from windows, while others rushed to the roof, where the store's zoo was located.

Six military airplanes dropped ropes to the shoppers stranded on the roof, enabling them to lower themselves to the street or adjacent buildings.

The lions, bears, monkeys, storks, cranes and hundreds of small birds in the zoo were also saved.

Confess Lancaster Bank Robbery To State Police

READING, Pa., Dec. 16.—(INS)—Three men held at the State Police barracks here have confessed today to participation in the robbery of the Mountville bank, near Lancaster, December 7, Capt. Samuel Gearhart announced. A small portion of the $7500 loot was recovered.

The men gave their names as Charles Burke, 27; Karl Kehrwidder, 28, both of Philadelphia, and William Schaffener, of Trenton, N. J. Burke was on parole from a five-year prison sentence for the theft of motor parts, police said. They believe he met the other men while in jail.

The men admitted their participation in the bank hold-up but steadfastly refused to name their three companions, police said. The gang swooped down on the Lancaster County bank, intimidated Clarence H. Gable, the cashier, and two tellers and fled with $7500 in a stolen automobile.

State police said they believed the robbery was planned in a bungalow owned by relatives of Kehrwidder and located at Pequea, Lancaster county. Kehrwidder and Burke were arrested in Philadelphia Tuesday night and Schaffener was taken into custody at Trenton Wednesday night. Captain Gearhart expressed hope other members of the gang will soon be taken into custody.

TALBOT'S ELECTION ASSURED

Harrisburg, Dec. 16.—The election of Grover C. Talbot, Delaware County, as Speaker of the House, appeared assured today when Governor Pinchot announced he will have no candidate for that place. The Governor confined his comment to the terse remark, "I am not interested in the Speakership." He refused to enlarge upon it. With the Governor having maintained silence no real opposition to the Talbot candidacy has developed. Rev. Hugh N. Stevenson, member from Mercer County, had announced he would oppose Talbot, but apparently he was unable to rally any real support.

ADMITS BARNES SHOOTING

Los Angeles, Cal., Dec. 16.—The mystery which surrounded the midnight shooting of Roy D. Barnes, 32-year-old Hollywood radio star, was cleared today when Titus Berry told police he had fired the shot in the belief a kidnapping was in progress after he heard the wild scream of Mrs. Dolores Barnes, 22, pretty red-haired wife of the victim. Berry was not held. Barnes is expected to recover.

Newark, N. J., Dec. 16.—The public life of Robert E. Burns, escaped Georgia convict and literary zebra, was seriously threatened today. While Burns, in a jail cell was giving (what may be his last) interview to the press, Warden Harry Hardy of the Georgia prison camp from which Burns escaped two years ago, was on his way here with extradition papers to reclaim the wanderer. A legal controversy loomed upon the arrival of the Georgia warden.

STATE NEWS

HARRISBURG.—Discrediting the theory that "criminals are born," John N. Cranor, superintendent of the reform school at Huntingdon, in an address before members of the ministerial association of Greater Harrisburg, revealed the circumstances which tend to increase youthful delinquency and crime.

"We also discredit the theory that a lot of those who have served terms in prison return again and again," Cranor said. "Once in jail is enough for most of them."

Asked where most of the youthful criminals come from, Cranor answered, "The slums."

HERSHEY.—(INS)—Faced with the unusually stiff assignment of playing three games in its opening week of action in the new Tri-State Amateur Ice Hockey League, which gets under way Wednesday night, the Hershey squad has been working strenuously to round into condition.

HAGERSTOWN, Md.—Rushing to help hustle 1,300 western hunger marchers through Hagerstown over the national highway, three Hagerstown policemen were badly injured in an automobile accident and were taken to a hospital. The "Army" however, did not arrive, having detoured across the Potomac at Oldtown, Md., and going to Washington by way of Winchester, Va.

DAVE'S DELICATESSEN

By MILT GROSS

Washington Letter

By Eric Friedhelm

(I. N. S. Staff Correspondent)
WASHINGTON, Dec. 16—(INS)—With their backs to the wall on the liquor question, the once powerful crusading lobby of the Methodist Board of Temperance, Prohibition and Public Morals is reverting to propaganda of a vintage contemporary with Carrie Nation, bustles and mustache cups to stem the tide of wet sentiment which flooded the nation in the last election.

A perusal of their latest clip-sheets, reveals the Board is adopting the old time "fire and brimstone" methods in attacking the threatened repeal.

"Political damnation" will come to any political party if "it does service to the liquor traffic," an editorial by the Board's secretaries admonishes. "There are indications that we are threatened with chaos in regard to this whole liquor problem."

An appeal to the heartstrings is added in another column, where a cartoon depicts the sordid picture of "Thanksgiving for Betty and Johnny when beer comes back." In this cartoon two tiny tots in ragged garb are gazing into a saloon where two sinister individuals lean against the bar in front of enormous five cent steins of foaming beer. The stereotyped bar tender, with close cropped hair, is shown mixing a cocktail.

Another cartoon is printed, and is a take-off on the "Spirit of '76." The three marchers of the patriotic painting have been revamped, and two of them are shown beating whiskey and beer barrels instead of drums, while the other is playing a beer bottle instead of his fife. It is titled "The Spirits of '32."

"If repeal comes," warns one article, "expect this:

"Your favorite orchestra on the radio with intervals of liquor advertising telling the girls how beer will preserve that school girl complexion, make 'em fat and make 'em lean, and put the hair right on their bean."

"Bill boards, miles of them, decorating the countryside, advising your son to drink whiskey; pictures of football players, runners and tennis players and the perennial pretty girls all advertising liquors."

"Whiskey testimonials from 'champions' who do not drink themselves—but like to cash the checks—beer testimonials from Miss North America, who also likes her checks."

BAN PLAIN FACES

TOKYO.—Girls with plain faces, girls who support their families and girls without parents are not wanted by Tokyo employers, said the head of one of the government employment offices. Also there are no jobs for girls with newspapermen or policemen as relatives.

KILL DEER FREAK

MACHIAS, Me.—Another freak of animal life was revealed here with the shooting of a doe with two eight-inch horns. Guides and hunters say while a deer with a single rudimentary horn has been seen occasionally, a doe with two horns is unusual.

STAGE NOVEL DANCE

MIDDLEBURY, Vt.—A "forty-niner" dance (49 cents, marked down from 50¢) at which both men and women paid their own admittance, both sexes cut in and no "dates" were allowed was held recently at Middlebury College.

MARRIES ACCUSER

ALAMOSA, Colo.—A murder trial here recently had a romantic sequel when Emma Lopez, acquitted of the murder of an infant child, and Alex Espinosa, her accuser, were married.

FASHION DESIGNERS OF PARIS REMAINING FAITHFUL TO FRILLS

By ALICE LANGELEIR
(Staff Correspondent I. N. S.)
PARIS.—Fashion is faithful to frills this fall and although she is showing many moods for the evening hours this winter, there can be no question that women will turn instinctively to frills when in doubt.
Fashionable couturiers are proving that the froth of flounces, placed at the correct point between the waist and the hem, does wonders at giving the slender silhouette which always remains the ideal.

A pale yellow crepe de Chine gown has shaped frills tapering in a back dip to accentuate the lines of the moulded corsage and diagonal pleats above the hem also help the slim effect. The bolero-bodice sports frills as well as the old-fashioned drop-shoulder line.
Frightfully frilly is a light fuchsia crepe made of layers and layers of graduated ruffles with the closefitting upper part of the same fabric on the lighter mauve side.

Frills arranged in a shaped effect and fine tucks to conform with the shaping give the slender line on an original light dahlia-colored velvet. It has quaint detachable sleeves of green velvet. Such striking contrasts are very much in vogue this year.
Sea-green velvet ruching provides old-fashioned frills on a very charming ivory crepe evening gown. The long bow and ends at the back are of plain velvet.
Fringe also furnishes frills on many fashionable frocks for winter. One lovely model of white crepe georgette is bordered with hand-made peau d'ange fringe. Swaying softly to the movements of the wearer, there is something very feminine about this sort of frill.

YORK, Pa.—An attempt at heroism sent Curtis Shaffer, local cigar store proprietor, to the hospital with a fractured leg. Shaffer plunged from a ladder while climbing to rescue a pet cat from a roof.
HARRISBURG.—Mrs. Anna Mull was sentenced last September to one to two years in jail for forgery. She came into court recently and said she lost 15 pounds in jail. The court paroled her.
HARRISBURG.—In an effort to improve India's milk supply, Dr. Sam Higginbottom, Presbyterian missionary who recently addressed Harrisburg churchmen on Hindu problems, will be accompanied on his return trip to India by a Lancaster county purebred calf.
The male calf, presented to Doctor Higginbottom by Roy F. Ferguson, Lancaster County farmer, will be used to strengthen strains of Indian cattle, now in poor condition because of the Hindu belief that cows are sacred.

New Vogue for Crowning Glory

Here is the newest style in which lady will wear her crowning glory this coming season. To adopt this distinctive coiffure the hair should be from three to five inches long. The simple tailored effect is emphasized by the soft, flat, band-like roll around the head which is achieved by bringing some of the long ends of the hair from front to back.

ATTRACTIVE DISHES MADE WITH HAM

EVERY housewife is familiar with three or four ways to serve ham. First there is the whole roast, crackling and savory with its golden crust studded with cloves. Then the old reliable slice of ham—fried or broiled to a turn and served alone or with eggs. Perhaps in addition to these two staple ways of serving this general favorite she has other recipes that utilize ham in some way. But, perhaps of all the meats, except beef, ham admits of a greater variety in serving that allows its frequent use on family or company menus. Its piquant flavor blends with other ingredients perfectly so that it need never become tiresome. Here are some suggestions as to its use:

A Whole Baked Ham

Wash and scrape the ham thoroughly and soak overnight in a pan with water to cover. When ready to bake place the ham, rind side up in an open pan. Do not add water and do not cover. Between 25 and 30 minutes per pound will be required to bake a whole ham. For half hams proportionate less time is needed. Shank ends usually require from 40 to 45 minutes per pound. When the ham is done remove the rind.

Make a paste of two cups of brown sugar and three cups of fine soft bread crumbs, one teaspoon of prepared mustard and either or vinegar enough to moisten the mixture. Spread the paste over the fat covering of the baked ham and stick long stemmed cloves into the surface. Bake the coated ham for 10 minutes in a hot oven.

Baked Ham Slice with Pineapple

Thick slice ham
1½ cup brown sugar
1½ cup bread crumbs
1 teaspoon prepared mustard
¾ cup pineapple juice
5 or 6 slices canned pineapple

The slice of ham should be about 1 inch thick. Trim off rind and lean edge. Fry out a piece of the fat in an iron skillet. Brown ham on both sides and transfer to a shallow baking dish. Pour off the fat from the pan, drippings and mix with the sugar, bread crumbs, mustard and pineapple juice. Cover the ham with this mixture and bake without a lid for 1 hour, basting occasionally. About 15 minutes after the ham is put into the oven arrange the pineapple slices cut in halves in another shallow baking dish and pour over them some of the liquid from the ham, bake for about 45 minutes. Turn the slices during cooking. Serve the pineapple around the ham.

Broiled Ham

Trim the rind and lean edge from a slice of ham and cut the edges in several places to prevent curling. To broil by direct heat, lay the ham on a rack and place under the flame of the gas oven. Turn frequently and cook at moderate heat. Allow about 10 minutes for a very thin slice, 30 minutes for a ham 1 inch thick.

Creamed Ham

3 tablespoons butter or other fat
4½ tablespoons flour
3 cups milk
3 cups ground cooked ham
¼ cup chopped cooked green pepper
Salt
Pepper

Make a white sauce of the fat, flour and milk. Add the ham and green pepper and cook about 10 minutes. Season to taste with salt and pepper and serve hot on toast or in a rice ring.

Ham and Potato Cakes

3 cups ground cooked ham
3 cups seasoned mashed potatoes
9 tablespoons chopped parsley
Salt
Tabasco sauce

Mix the ham, mashed potatoes, and parsley and season to taste with salt and pepper and tabasco sauce. Mold into flat cakes, flour them lightly and fry in hot bacon fat or other drippings until brown.

Ham, Cheese and Green Pepper Salad

1 cup ground cooked ham
1 cup finely cut celery
2 cream cheese
¼ cup chopped parsley
Salt
3 medium size green peppers

Mix the ham, celery, cheese and parsley thoroughly. Salt to taste. Pack the mixture into the green peppers in slices and serve on lettuce with French dressing.

NOW when it's the paramount object of every housewife to reduce her food budget to its lowest possible level, new ways of utilizing left overs are eagerly tried.

The array of leucers filled with remnants of this and that may present a pretty hopeless spectacle. But have you ever tried making sandwiches with the left over beans? Mash the beans thoroughly with tomato sauce, add onion juice and a dash of lemon. Combine with this the four or five ripe olives left from last night's dinner, chopped fine. Spread on rye about one inch of water. Bake and serve with rice.

Perhaps you've had a ham-baked or boiled and there are a few broken pieces remaining. Run through the food chopper, season with grated onion, salt and pepper to taste and fill four or five green peppers with the mixture. Arrange in a casserole with one inch of water. Bake and serve with rice.

The odds and ends of bread may be made into bread pudding—it will take on a new guise if you add a few nuts and that third of a glass of jelly that's been standing around so long. Mix the bread with milk to moisten well, add one egg, well beaten and the above mentioned ingredients. Bake in a casserole until crusty brown. Serve with hard sauce.

SQUAD OF B. H. S. IS CUT TO 27 PLAYERS

By Oscar Corn

After a fairly successful football season, Bristol High's coach, Mr. Dougherty, had an immense squad of 68 boys answer the call for basketball candidates.

The squad was cut after a week of hard practice to 27 players. They are: Gallagher, Pagen, Roe, Cole, Brown, Cahall, Borneice, Manzo, Van Eken, Smith, Orazi, Giorotti, Di Micco, Gibson, Spencer, Fry, Rue, Corn, Schiffer, Strott, Picardi, Di Lissio, Monti, Ross, Biancasino, Hughes, and Platch.

In former years Bristol high has produced, yearly, leading teams in the Lower Bucks County League. This year, the local mentor, who is having his first basketball season at Bristol, this year, hopes to uphold this standard.

There are a few letter men back on the squad this year, but the greater part of the turn-out was composed of new material. These prospects show excellent ability and have a great future ahead of them.

This year Bristol will play four new teams of reputed ability. They are: Palmyra High, Bordentown High, Bordentown Military Academy, and Pennington High.

A stiff schedule has been made by Managers Feli, Morse and Blanche.

Schedule:

Jan. 6, Alumni, home.

Jan. 7, Bordentown Military Academy, away.

Jan. 10, Langhorne, away.

Jan. 13, Southampton, home.

Jan. 20, Bensalem, home.

Jan. 24, Morrisville, home.

Jan. 27, Yardley, home.

Jan. 31, Southampton, away.

Feb. 3, Langhorne, home.

Feb. 7, Morrisville, away.

Feb. 10, open.

Feb. 14, Yardley, away.

Feb. 17, Bordentown High, away.

Jan. 21, Palmyra, (pending).

Feb. 24, Pennington High, away.

Feb. 28, open.

Mar. 3, Bensalem, away.

Mar. 7, Pennington, home (pending).

Mar. 10, Alumni, home.

ODD FELLOWS DROP ANOTHER CLOSE TILT

The Odd Fellows dropped another close tilt in the Bristol Basketball League last night when they were defeated by the Knights of Columbus five by a two-point margin. The final tabulations were: Knights, 33; Odd Fellows, 31.

It marked the first victory of the season for the Casey who led from the start and piled up a bigger lead as the game progressed. But a gallant rally by the "Oddies" put them in the game and sliced down the margin of the Knights' lead.

With thirty seconds to play the Odd Fellows threw a great scare into the Knights team by hitting the rim of the basket on three different occasions. If one of the shots had dropped into the net it would have meant that the game would have to go into an extra five minute period.

It was really "Gunner" Corrigan who beat the Odd Fellows. Gunner had one of his good nights and hit the basket for six field goals and three fouls, a total of fifteen points. He was the high scorer for the night.

The points of the Odd Fellows were well-divided. Still leading with nine points.

The victory for the Knights puts them out of the cellar with one win and three defeats. The Odd Fellows hold the same log of victories and defeats.

Taking the lead from the opening tap-off, the Hibernians gradually increased it, until they had captured their fourth straight win of the Bristol Basketball League. The Aces were the victims and the count was 35-19.

The game was more closely fought than the score indicates. Although the "Hibs" led throughout the Aces were always threatening and a rally in any of the first three sessions would have put them in the fray. In the last quarter, the Aces were lost and point after point went to the winning team.

"Eddie" Roe and Gene Lawler were the scoring aces of the winning club. Both of these players made eleven points each. Joe Britton was the leading scorer of the losers with nine points. Tentlucci and Mulligan played good defensive games for their respective teams.

WE MET one of the older citizens of the town the other day who congratulated us on our column ... After fanning around for a while he said there are a lot of people who would like to read something about the "Good Old Days" ... the days when the town was full of interesting people ... baseball players, basketball players, prizefighters, ice and roller skaters, etc. ... We told our friend that we would be glad to retell some of the tales of the "good old days," but would have to depend on some of the old stagers like himself for our information ... He started right off by telling about the enthusiastic fans

'BABE'

HOW MUCH LONGER WILL HE LAST?

RUTH WILL BE 39 IN FEBRUARY AND NEXT YEAR WILL BE HIS 20TH IN BASEBALL!

THE BABES HOME RUNS HELPED TO RUIN THE CUBS LAST FALL!

RUTH AND COL. RUPPERT WILL SOON START ANOTHER OF THEIR FAMOUS "CONTRACT DUELS."

BURNLEY

WHEN it comes to naming the greatest baseball player of all time, you can have your Cokes and your Hans Wagners, your Ed Delehanty and your "King" Kellys, but give me that old Bambino every time.

As Billy Evans—once the best of all umpires and now the baseball brains of the Cleveland Indians—said last summer in a fanning bee, "Babe Ruth is the greatest ball player of them all. He created value far beyond any other ball player that ever lived, and in some essentials stands alone. Ruth can strike out and look better than the average man can look in hitting a home run. And when he hits a home run, he is glorious."

Most baseball men and nearly all baseball fans would agree with Evans in his estimate of Ruth. The Babe has earned his glory, and his ability equals his unrivaled genius for showmanship. He is the greatest attraction that the game ever produced. He revolutionized the game of baseball and converted it from a chess-like game of science and skill into a slugging spectacle chock full of thrills.

Men have brought color to baseball before, but Ruth brought a rainbow. Who could ever have equalled the Great Man on that memorable day in Chicago last Fall when he called his shots to the Cubs before hitting those two home runs? And 1932 was his 19th year in active baseball competition!

People said that Ed Barrow was crazy when he took Ruth out of the pitcher's box and made him into an outfielder back in Babe's old Red Sox days. Ruth was a great pitcher, and smart baseball men said that Barrow was making a terrible mistake in trying to shift the best southpaw of his time from the pitching mound to the outfield position.

But Ed knew his stuff. Ruth was the greatest left-hander of his pitching day all right, but he became the greatest figure in baseball by the switch.

The usual "contract duel" between Colonel "Jake" Ruppert, general owner of the Yanks, and the Babe will occupy plenty of space on the sports pages in the next couple of months. The Colonel is always defeated before he starts in these battles, however, since the Yankees feel that they just couldn't get along without Ruth, even if he has to circle those bases in a wheel chair after smacking the pill over the barriers.
